

Themes at first PFIAB session:

a. Anderson repeatedly asked "Do estimators (or analysts generally) get feedback from Kissinger trips to Soviet Union/China?" -- Answer was no.

b. There was apparently some discussion about whether miniature recorders had reached a point where they could be used by delegates to international conferences to record meetings and were these used, for example, in Soviet summit meetings -- Answer again no.

STAT

d. Anderson expressed concern about a DOD paper, apparently produced by Danny Graham's shop, which was in effect a Defense Intelligence Estimate on the Sino-Soviet border situation. He expressed outrage at its being distributed within the community as if it were a coordinated piece. (Some preliminary research by Tom Parrott on his return indicated this was seen by ONE before its publication but there was no attempt at coordination, and indeed in this series this is not necessary).

All in all, meetings went very well.
